

1. Is there information available that describes the Classical Curriculum track?

Yes, we recommend the following resources as a good place to start. They are both available as free downloads. The Lost Tools of Learning by Dorothy Sayers http://www.triviumeducation.com/texts/The_Lost_Tools_of_Learning.pdf
An Introduction to Classical Education: A Guide for Parents by Dr. Christopher Perrin <http://classicalsubjects.com/resources/ICE.pdf>

2. Why is it called the Chesterton Academy?

The name comes from G.K. Chesterton (1874-1936), a prolific Catholic writer who is considered one of the world's most outstanding men of letters and its most original thinker. As a recognized defender of the faith, a literary genius, and a stellar example of Christian charity, Chesterton is a perfect model on which to develop a classical education model.

3. Is the Chesterton Academy a separate school?

No, it is a curriculum track within Catholic Central High School. Full-time students are matriculated Catholic Central students. Current students may also take courses offered in this curriculum track. Part-time students can take Chesterton courses, but they will not graduate with a Chesterton Academy certificate. Part-time students must follow the Diocesan part-time student policy.

4. Is there a difference in tuition for students in the classical curriculum track?

No, the tuition for all Catholic Central students is the same. For the 2018-2019 school year full time tuition will be near our current tuition of $4,100. There is a registration fee of $50.00 and school fees of approximately $250.00 per year.

5. Will students following the classical curriculum track have the opportunity to interact with students who are not in the program? Yes, all students will mingle and mix at mass, lunch, band, chorus, clubs, drama, and sports. Chesterton Academy students will also be integrated into regular math, science, and elective courses.

9. Will all students take philosophy?

Yes, all students in the classical track will have 4 years of philosophy. Due to the layering of the philosophy curriculum, sophomores beginning the program in the fall of 2018 will take the same course as freshmen, and they will only have 3 years as it is important to start the study of philosophy "from the beginning."

10. What is the primary method of instruction in the classical curriculum track?

The curriculum's governing principal is that of Socratic Dialogue whereby students prepare themselves each night to participate the following day in teacher-moderated discussions. The program will also offer standard teacher lectures, note taking, and written tests.

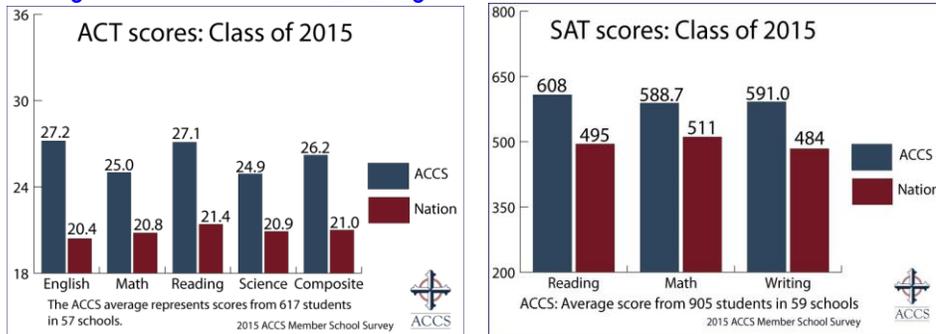

11. What will my child take in college after graduating from this rigorous academic program?

Though some of the coursework sounds like a college set of credits, the courses are appropriate for the high school level. The coursework will, however, prepare the student to succeed in higher education and give them a clear sense of courses and majors in college. Through our partnership with Franciscan University, possibilities of college credit will continue to be investigated.

12. Is this curriculum track "authentically Catholic?" Our faith is interwoven throughout the curriculum and it reflects the history and teaching tradition of our Church. The exploration of original works by the greatest philosophers, theologians and historians, coupled with meaningful discussion, ensures that students will enjoy a rich experience. Daily Mass is offered, teachers take the Oath of Fidelity to the Magisterium, and students are trained as cultural warriors – defending truth, the family, and the culture of life.

13. How does the classical approach work for students who want to be scientists and engineers?

The leaders of engineering firms and scientific discovery are those who can articulate their ideas the best through both writing and rhetorical skills. Graduates of classical schools perform well in standardized testing and have additional leadership and communication skills that colleges seek. Average test scores of graduates from a classical curriculum are significantly higher than the national average. For recent performance on standardized testing, visit this website: http://www.accsedu.org/what-is-cce/statistics_at_a_glance.
